Subject: Microsoft is getting off easy.

I have just seen an article on a web site that describes a "Grassroots effort against Microsoft settlement". This is a movement that I am proud to join.

As an avid Macintosh user and supporter, I have been profoundly against anything that has the Microsoft name attached to it?especially software. As it stands Microsoft has been a monopoly since the introduction of Windows 95. Ever since, I and other fellow Mac Users, have been subject to the same pressures and attitudes that is equally seen with racism. Using such a powerful term is the only way to describe what I have endured for my entire life as a Macintosh User.

I personally feel that when the anti-trust case was brought out into the open, it was going to be a step in the right direction for fairness within the computing industry. As it currently stands, I have been let down AGAIN. I felt that with the backing of the Department of Justice behind this suit, things would grow for Computing. Right now I see this situation as another fat cat getting off with a slap on the wrist, getting a stern lecture, where the cat is faking sincerity and has its fingers crossed.

Today we have to stand up to this "giant" and say that everyone deserves equal time and representation. This giant has its grip on just about everything available and this is fundamentally wrong.

Please include my name in support in the effort to bring down this bully of the Technological Age.
